For Stacy, the most personally rewarding aspect working in the nonprofit sector is to establish relationships with others who inspire and support at risk individuals and social groups, while maintaining a strong commitment to her faith. Her unique hands on experience of working with domestic and international ministries and faith-based providers, has given her a unique perspective on the lasting impact Jesus can have on a child's life.

Stacy grew up and began her career in Oklahoma in a fortune 500 company. After receiving a degree in International Business from the University of Oklahoma, she moved to Texas to advance her career. Within a couple years of professional growth and multiple promotions, she transitioned to Georgia to begin her vocation in the nonprofit sector.

While in Georgia, Stacy had the opportunity partner with multiple ministries and service organizations leading short term mission trips domestically and international. Her many cultural experiences solidified her desire to pursue a career in influencing the lives of the most vulnerable children with the love of Jesus.

Stacy and her husband of 20 years, Joe, live in Oklahoma with two incredible teen boys. They desire to live a life of love and integrity by equipping and empowering the next generation with the skills they need to serve those around them.
